

Schinokouloura Anevata of Archangelos (Rhodes)

Mrs. Charikleia Nestoros, Coordinator of Nostos Homes Cultural Projects

Cofinancé par le
programme Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

Schinokouloura Anevata of Archangelos (Rhodes)

Schinokouloura, full of deep red coloured skins seeds that contain a beautiful medium sweet and yet sour flavour
as well as a unique aroma.
A very special traditional bun.

Cofinancé par le
programme Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

Schinokouloura anevata?

“Anevata” traditional buns are made of yeast and after kneading they remain covered with a blanket until they ‘anevoun’, which means swell.

The swelled dough is slightly cut on the top.

Cofinancé par le
programme Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

Our ingredients:

- 5kg flour (half all-purpose half wheat)
- Olive oil (about 1kg)
- Sugar up to 1kg (to taste)
- 2-3 cups of lukewarm water
- A pinch of salt
- Skinos seed (to taste)

Cofinancé par le
programme Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

Execution

- Prepare from the night before the dough (yeast) using 1 ½ kg flour
- The next day add in a bowl the rest of the flour and the pinch of salt. Make a hole in the middle of the flour and add the yeast there. Mix it slightly with the rest of the flour.

- Add the sugar and stir. Then add the olive oil gradually and stir. You might not need to add all of it, depends on the flour.
- Add the water gradually and start kneading. It might need more, again depending on the flour. The dough should be soft.
- When dough is almost ready add the skins seeds, about 100gr to 1kg flour and knead some more.

par le le Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

- Make buns in the size of a tea saucer.
- Place your freshly made schinokouloura in buttered oven pans and cover them up with a towel and a blanket on top. Wait until they swell.
- When they are sized up smear them with egg yolk mixed with some water and bake them immediately.
- For electric oven, 170 Celsius degrees for 20-25 mins until they turn lightly brown.
- For a traditional wood oven, fire up in medium heat and bake.

GOOD LUCK

Nostos Homes

Two traditional arch homes in Archangelos Rhodes - Ambassadors of Hellenic Culture"

Cofinancé par le
programme Erasmus+
de l'Union européenne

